The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol \rightarrow (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ∇ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole \rightarrow signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ∇ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

FACTS FOR ELECTORS

REFORM, RACE and REVENGE

THE RISE AND PROGRESS OF THE RIEL MOVEMENT IN QUEBEC AND ONTARIO

During the progress of the Riel Rebellion and for months after, the Reform press clamored for the punishment of the chief rebel. He was not mad, so it was said; his crime was entirely without justification; nothing but death would expiate his crimes. In evidence, let us take the opinion of some Reform organs BEFORE the execution:

"This morning at a late hour," says the Globe of May 16, 1886, "the glorious news was flashed over the wires that Riel had been captured. . . . A soldier's death would have been far too good for the traitor-agitator." In June the same paper said, "We want Riel and the other ringleaders brought to immediate justice;" and in July the same organ opined that "the public believe Riel and his associates guilty of the highest crime known to the law. And public indignation would be excited did any of them escape punishment." In August the same journal said: "The crime of which Riel has been convicted is one of the most dreadful that can be imagined. It was of the essence of Riel's crime that he knew what the Indians are capable of, and what atrocities they would probably commit, when their savage nature was thoroughly excited." Still more: "As to the prisoner's guilt there has been no shadow of doubt since his letter to Poundmaker was produced. Nor as to his sanity has there been any doubt since the jury, having heard the experts' evidence, decided that Riel was responsible." The London Advertiser was equally clear: "Why should the Province of Quebec come to the rescue of Riel? Why should it overlook the murders of men and women, clergymen and laymen, and the consequences of Riel's appeal to the Indians?" The same authority goes on to say at another time: "The law makes treason a crime. The law has pronounced Riel guilty of that crime. The duties of the Executive are clear and simple." In May the Globe went on to say: "It will occur to

"everybody that this is the right moment for the Government to step in and offer a heavy reward for the rendition of the persons or bodies of Riel and the other ringleaders of the rebellion." The Ottawa Free Press, a stalwart Blakeite, was of opinion that "when Riel conspired with the Indians he opened the gates of rapine and murder, and for that offence deserved the severest penalty possible." The Guelph Mercury was clear that "Riel deserved the murderer's fate;" and the Huron Expositor thought that "he certainly deserved to be hanged, if ever a man did." "The life of Riel is a small matter in the presence of the law," thought the St. Catharines News. The St. Thomas Journal was at that time equally outspoken. "Riel had been sentenced to be hanged," said that authority; "now we wait that hanging. Riel's trial was short, his condemnation swift. May his fate be sure." The Brantford Expositor thought that "if Riel escapes the hanging, it will be a miscarriage of justice."

A NOTABLE CHANGE OF FRONT

took place along the whole line of the Reform press after the execution of Riel, showing that it was not for love of justice, but for party purposes that the Globe, its satellites and the Grit party had hounded down Riel and his dupes. Then it was suddenly discovered that Riel's course was justifiable—at any rate that he was insane, and had been unfairly tried. It was ascertained that he had fallen a victim to the Orange thirst for blood, and that his execution was a "judicial murder." On the 20th of March the Globe was clear that "the Government is now on trial for having executed the leader of the insurrection;" that "the execution was a cruel, a barbarous, an impolitic, an unstatesmanlike, and a totally unnecessary act." Mr. Blake declared in the House of Commons, on March 15th, that he was "unable honestly to differ from the view that it is to be deeply regretted that this execution should have been allowed to take place." Commenting on this, the Port Hope Times said: "We extend our hearty sympathies to our Quebec brethren, and we assure them in the name of the Liberal party that they have hosts of friends in Ontario."

THE CRY WAS AT ONCE RAISED

in the Province of Quebec that Riel had been executed because he was a French-Canadian, a Catholic, and vengeance upon the Dominion Government was resolved upon. On the afternoon of November 16th, 1885, the Montreal City Council met, and strongly protested against the execution. After the adjournment the city hall flag was raised to half mast, and a mass meeting was held outside the building. Among the speakers was Mr. Mercier, Ald. Prefontaine, now President of the Dominion Young Liberals' Association, followed with a violent speech, in which he asserted that "the hanging of Riel was virtually the sacrifice of the French race to fanatical prejudice, and that it was the duty of all faithful Canadians to see that Sir John was given a terrible lesson." In the evening an immense crowd gathered on the Champ de Mars, where effigies of Sir John Macdonald, Sir Hector Langevin, Sir Adolphe Caron and Hon. M. Chapleau, were publicly burned. An English newspaper office was visited, stones were sent into the windows of the editorial rooms, and the proprietor narrowly escaped a serious wound. In Quebec the same evening, 15,000 people met in a gathering which was "exceedingly violent in its expressions and resolves of antipathy to the Orangemen of Ontario." The windows of the Chronicle, the only Quebec paper which approved of the execution, were smashed.

RACE AND REVENGE.

On the following day the organizers of the so-called National Party met in Montreal for the purpose of laying out their plans. An executive committee was appointed. Among the members of that committee were Mr. Mercier and Mr. Prefontaine, now President of the Young Men's Dominion Liberal Association. On the same day a mass meeting was held in the Champ de Mars, and the following sentiments were embodied in the resolutions then passed :

"That the execution of Louis Riel is an outrage to justice and humanity ; that the French-Canadian Ministers, and those who endeavor to justify their conduct, be looked upon as traitors ; that Louis Riel be placed among the political martyrs of the French-Canadian nationality."

This was the first general announcement of the National Party of the policy of "Race and Revenge." On the following day the alliance between the National Party and Ontario Liberals was arranged, and to-day Mr. Blake stands at the head of the former, with Mr. Mercier on one side and Mr. Mowat on the other. Then

MR. EDGAR CAME IN.

On November 20th, 1885, the confidential agent and general fuctotum of Mr. Blake arrived in Montreal for the purpose of arranging an alliance between the leaders of the Liberal Party in Ontario and the promoters of the "Race and Revenge" movement in Quebec. At the previous night's meeting Mr. David had declared that "at the head of the new National Party should stand the Hon. Edward Blake." The arrangement then made has so far been faithfully carried out by Mr. Blake and his Lieutenant, Mr. Mowat.

On November 21st the Globe announced, on behalf of Messrs. Blake and Mowat, that those gentlemen had determined to ally the English-speaking Reformers with the Nationalist Party, joined for the purpose of avenging the death of Riel. In the course of the article announcing this, the Grit organ said : "We ask all fair-minded English-speaking citizens to put themselves in the place of the men of Riel's race, before charging them with offensive sympathy. . . . A hearty union of both Provinces to punish the malefactors in office is the only course by which Canada can be saved." About the same time Mr. Anglin declared in his own paper that the execution of Riel was "a foul political murder."

On Sunday, November 22, a great meeting on the Champ de Mars, Montreal, was held. Riel was then held up as a patriot, a martyr, a hero, and a saint. The "hangmen of Ontario" were held responsible for the "crime." Mr. Laurier declared that the execution was a "judicial murder." He said that "if he had been living on the banks of the Saskatchewan when the revolt broke out, he would himself have taken up arms against the Government." He said further: "Henceforth there is to be but a united nationality, which will receive the support of their Liberal allies of the Province of Ontario and of the great statesman, Edward Blake."

THE "NATIONALIST" PRESS

came out hot and strong upon this question, as might have been expected, after the lead given to it by firebrand and interested politicians, French and English.

Said L'Etendard: "As to the affairs of the North-West, is it not evident that the highest sense of justice would have avoided the rising and the civil war? . . . and the arson, the thefts, the robberies, the murdering of the wounded by the volunteers—was not all this persecution?" Le Nord burst forth: "Glut yourselves, Orange brothers, with the spectacle of the hanged Riel. You have vindicated the majesty of the law, but you have also dug beneath the scaffold a pit in which may be buried all your dreams of tyranny and domination over the North-West."

MR. JOLY'S LETTER

was a thunderbolt to the conspirators. Formerly Premier of Quebec, and a Rouge at that, rather than join the "Race and Revenge" crusade for party purposes, he declared in his letter of November 28th, "I cannot approve of the agitation which is now carried on in the Province of Quebec. . . . I cannot see how the formation of a new party, the National Party, would better their position (the French-Canadians), but I think I can see how it would endanger the future welfare of the Dominion." Another letter, breathing a very different spirit, but equally indicative, though in another way, of one spirit that was permeating the Quebecians, was sent to the Mail by "a Montreal French-Canadian." It was dated December 8th, 1885, and opened: "Messieurs les Orangeistes.—You are nothing but vile scoundrels. You have hanged Riel, the brave French-Canadian Metis. . . . But the crime which you have committed at Regina will not remain unpunished." And so on, et cetera.

THE ONTARIO RIELITES

During the last session of the Ontario Legislature an amendment to the address was moved by Mr. Meredith, expressing appreciation of the conduct of the permanent military forces of Canada, and of the volunteers. An amendment to this was moved by Mr. White, as follows: "And we must, now that peace has been restored, the supremacy of the law vindicated, and just punishments inflicted upon the principal participants in the rebellion, it may be consistent with the public interests to extend the merciful consideration of the Crown

"to the cases of those who are now undergoing imprisonment for offences committed during or arising out of it." The amendment was most bitterly opposed by the Government, and was voted down. During the debate Mr. Fraser likened Riel to Sir George Cartier, and said that at no distant date a monument would be erected to the rebel's memory.

The following are the names of the gentlemen who voted against Mr. White's amendment, and who practically thereby denied that justice had been done, and cast a slur upon the volunteers. Mr. Fraser's speech was especially virulent. Here are the "Nays:"

Awrey, Ballantyne, Baxter, Bishop, Blezard, Cascaden, Chisholm, Conmee, Cooke, Dill, Dowling, Drury, Dryden, Ferguson, Ferris, Fraser, Freeman, Gibson (Huron), Gillies, Gould, Hagar, Harcourt, Hardy, Hart, Hawley, Laidlaw, Lyon, McIntyre, MacKenzie, McKim, McLaughlin, McMahon, Master, Morin, Mowat, O'Connor, Pardee, Phelps, Rayside, Ross (Huron), Ross (Middlesex), Sills, Snider, Waters, Young.

PACAUD'S CASE

The sympathy which the Government side of the House then displayed with the "Race and Revenge" movement was even more strongly brought out by the Pacaud episode. The people of Ontario are not likely to forget that Mr. Mowat not only took into his employment, but energetically defended, a man who had made it his business both to insult the volunteers and to espouse the cause of Riel after the fashion of the rebel's most rabid friends in Quebec. Pacaud is editor of Le Progres, published in Detroit, and, favored by pap from the Ontario Government, undertook to introduce the "Race and Revenge" cry into Essex. Pacaud afterwards went to Toronto, and told the people to watch for his letters from the Press Gallery. This is how he wrote of the rebellion and of the volunteers: "The Government troops were the first to fire; the volunteers assassinated the wounded Metis, insulted the women, burned and pillaged their houses; Riel was indirectly promised his life by General Middleton; the trial at Regina was specially contrived to condemn Riel to death, the jury was picked out, and Richardson either was an Orangeman or was the stipendiary tool of the Government." This and much more of the same sort. Mr. White asked whether it was right that a man so misrepresenting and abusing the Opposition should be allowed to sit in the gallery. Mr. Mowat energetically defended his protege, who is now a candidate in his interest in the county of Essex.

RACE AND REVENGE AT OTTAWA

During the last session of the Commons, Mr. Landry moved a resolution expressing strong regret that Riel had been executed. In the following debate Mr. Blake advanced every possible argument in justification of Riel and of the rebellion. The rebel was likened by Mr. L'Angelier, M.P. for Quebec, to our Saviour. The motion was defeated, the voting analysis showing that Ontario went 18 for it and 65 against, Quebec supporting it by 28 votes and 36 being cast against it. Only one English-speaking representative from Quebec voted for Mr. Landry's motion. The Reformers voting with the Government numbered 24. The Ontario Reformers who supported Mr. Landry were Messrs. Allen, Armstrong, Blake, Cameron (Huron), Cameron (Middlesex), Campbell, Casey, Cooke, Edgar, Glen, Hawley, Landerkin, Lister, Mills, Somerville, Trow and Wells.

THE CHAMBLY ELECTION

came on about the end of July, the sole issue being the Riel question, Mr. Prefontaine being the Rielite candidate. He was successful, one of the first to congratulate him being Mr. D. E. Cameron, a prominent Young Liberal, who telegraphed: "Accept our sincerest congratulations on your magnificent victory, which I regard as preceding a still greater triumph." Another telegram began: "The Liberals of Toronto congratulate you on your splendid victory." It ended as follows:

"WELCOME TO OUR (RIELITE) COLLEAGUE."—J. D. EDGAR

Referring to this extraordinary document, the Huntingdon Gleaner, the leading Liberal paper of the Eastern Townships, and the organ of the English-speaking Reformers in Quebec, said: "Mr. Edgar is a member of the House of Commons, and reputed to be Mr. Blake's adviser in party movements. Whether he has authority to speak on behalf of the Toronto Liberals, we cannot say. If he has, are we to understand that they endorse the late rebellion; that they consider their gallant fellow-citizens, Col. Otter and his brave regiment, fought on the wrong side, ought to be punished, and Big Bear, Dumont and his brothers in arms, rewarded? Is it their private opinion that, instead of having honorable sepulture, the bodies of Lieut. Fitch, Private Moor, Bugler Foulkes and others, should have been hung in chains, and that a monument should be erected to Riel in Queen's Park? * * * If it really be the case that the Liberals of Toronto regard the triumph of treason at Chambly as a 'splendid victory,' we are dumfounded, and we warn them that they and the Liberals of this Province part company. If the Liberals of Ontario cannot defeat Sir John at the polls on the broad issue of his general policy, we are not going to share in their disgrace in

"UNITING WITH BIGOTS AND REBELS

"to drive him from office for an act we unanimously approve—his permitting Riel to receive the punishment the law adjudged."

As at Chambly, so at Quebec, the sole question at the recent elections was the Riel business, and the avowed aim of the Nationalists was revenge for the murder of their hero. At a meeting in Montreal, in connection with the

QUEBEC ELECTIONS

Senator Thibaudeau said: "The choice of the meeting should be a "Nationalist. It does not matter so much as to his profession." At the same meeting the following preamble to a resolution was passed: "Considering that the Liberal and Conservative National electors of "Montreal at last hold it to be necessary to oppose the re-election of "the Hon. Mr. Taillon, in order to avenge the national cause," etc. As is now known Mr. Taillon was defeated, and telegraphed as follows to Mr. Mercier, "Have just received here the "joyful news of your great triumph. I congratulate you and all your "friends on your important victory." That is, he triumphed in the fact that the men who are seeking to avenge Riel by destroying both the Quebec and Dominion Governments had succeeded. He and Mr. Blake have now called upon their friend and ally, Mr. Mercier, to send Rielite speakers into Ontario to help fight their battle here.

In view of this compact between the Mowat Government and what is known as Nationalism in Quebec, it is important to comprehend the full meaning of that term. L'Union des Cantons de l'Est, a Nationalist paper published at Arthabaskaville, on Nov. 13th thus discoursed upon Nationalism: "The Conservative Nationalists, breaking with Sir John and the sect, join their natural allies in Hon. Mr. Blake and the party which marches behind him. Mr. Blake and "his followers in Ontario are the men to whom we must tender our "hands. They are fighting our enemies; our enemies are the Orange-istes and all who favor them."

It is impossible to misunderstand this, or to avoid the conclusion that it thoroughly explains the close relations confessedly now maintained between Mr. Mowat and the Rielites. No wonder that the people of Ontario, both Liberal and Conservative, have taken alarm at the unholy alliance between the Provincial Government and the rebellious Quebecians for the sake of retaining power. No wonder that the

of taking the stump on Riel's grave in order to embarrass Sir John Macdonald's Government and purchase Mr. Blake's support for the Local Government, has given offence. Was it for this that our gallant volunteers leapt to arms and underwent untold privations in order to suppress the rebellion and avenge the cold-blooded murder of defenceless men, innocent women and children? Was it that Riel might be elevated from his real position as a cruel, mercenary adventurer, to that of a canonized hero that Canada gave of her heart's blood? Was it for this that the gallant men whose names follow laid down their lives? The blood of every soldier who gave his life for his country cries aloud from the grave at such a suggestion. What say the friends of the

All this is to say nothing of the sufferings of the wounded, and of the death and suffering brought upon civilians by the arch-traitor in whose behalf Ontario Rielites or Mowatites—for the terms are interchangeable—have raised their voices and are now exerting their influence.

The foregoing are facts, and require no comment. It is only necessary that the electors of Ontario should see them in their true light to get an expression of opinion during the pending elections which will for ever set at rest the idea that it is a justifiable political course to flirt with treason.
